Our velour seat covers fabrics come to two kinds: microfiber suede and flocking.

For Microfiber suede, maybe you don't know much about this word, but you should hear of "Alcantara" on TV or web when it refers to the car interior. Microfiber suede is composed of approximately 68% polyester and 32% polyurethane, which offers increased durability and stain resistance.

For flocking, it is a kind of velour that deposits many small fiber particles (named flock) onto a fabric surface by the computerized flocking machine. The flock design and height can be customized, solid or combination colors will be applied for flocking, and the fabric cost is expensive than suede.

Regards to our velour seat cover, multifunctional are one of the key factors. They not only look luxurious, feel like velvet, but also comfortable and durable. Made of breathable and waterproof material, it will protect your car interior from daily wear and tear, especially when you travel with your lovely dog and kids. It is also radiation proof, that means it can endure the sun exposure without major color fading. Because velour is sort of plush cloth, it can relieve cold or hot effectively. Needless to say, if your seats are genuine leather or leatherette vinyl, our velour seat cover will help you avoid direct touch with burning hot or icy cold seat.

Thanks to an extensive selection of the popular vibrant colors, our velour seat covers give a rich velvety look to your interior.
